ADDIS ABABA'S FALL NEAR

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

"THE Country Doctor" opened at the Saenger theater Wednesday night for a three-day run through Friday—and it's all that it has been proclaimed by the critics, likely the most popular motion picture this year.

Alcohol Refinery to Aid Agriculture Started in Kansas

Has 10,000-Gallon Daily Capacity for New Power Fuel

BLEND IS PROPOSED

Chemical Foundation of New York Contracts for the Output

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
ATLANTON, Kan.—(AP)—Completion of the first "farm fuel refinery" in the United States, a plant to manufacture 10,000 gallons daily of "power alcohol" from farm crops was announced at a meeting of the Atchison Chamber of Commerce here Wednesday.

The plant is expected to begin production within two weeks. It is the first in a campaign planned by the Chemical Foundation Inc. of New York, to test commercial feasibility of selling alcohol to mix in gasoline as a motor fuel.

The experiment is part of a plan to create new markets for American farm crops. The alcohol making plant was built and will be operated by the Bailor Manufacturing company, one of the old farm machinery firms of the Midwest.

Output Contracted For
The Chemical Foundation has contracted to buy the entire output through the Chemical Foundation of Kansas, an organization created this week. The new foundation has requests for more of the alcohol than the new plant can supply. These requests are from gasoline dealers interested in trying the blending experiment, some of them already selling blended alcohol and gasoline.

The alcohol to be made by the new plant is slightly different from any now on the market. It is grain alcohol, "anhydrous" that is, without water and is 99.5 per cent proof.

The Kansas manufacturing process is new. It is an experiment aiming ultimately at cheapening the cost of manufacture if possible. It can make grain alcohol from corn, oats, rye, barley, or potatoes. It will start making the alcohol from corn.

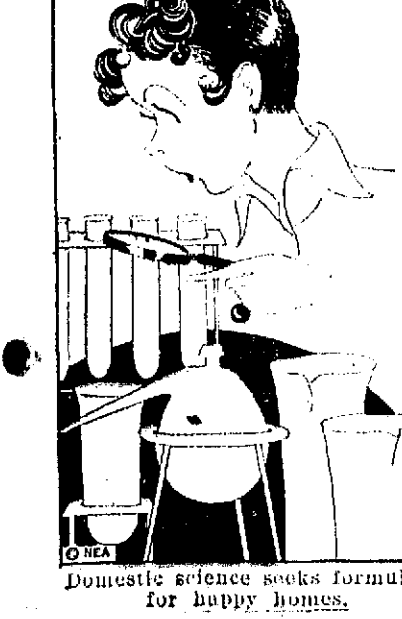

The contract price the distributors is to start at 25 cents a gallon. The manufacturers will have a by-product from corn of protein cattle feed which they expect to market.

Claim Advantages
One of the buyers from the Kansas Chemical Foundation is D. B. Gurney of Yankton, S. D., with a contract for 2,000 gallons a day. Gurney, who has been selling an alcohol-gasoline mixture at his stations, quotes customers as declaring that the blend gives them quicker starting, even in the past cold winter, prevents carbon, minimizes crank case dilution, adds to antiknock quality of fuel, improves acceleration, and gives more mileage.

Bid White House Burns

SELMA, Ohio—(AP)—Flames burst out of the attic of Howard Holloway's house while an auction sale was under way in the front yard. The crowd formed a bucket brigade, but the fire was out of control. While the house burned to the ground, they returned to the auction.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

I suppose The Star might be accused of being partial toward this film. It was our feature syndicate, NEA Service, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio, which obtained the world copyright on all photographs of the Dionne sisters—and to NEA Service and its 800 allied newspapers, therefore, goes much of the credit in promoting this famous medical story.

It was because of NEA's copyright ownership, and our own promotion of the Dionne pictures in this territory, that we ran the serial story, "The Country Doctor," last month.

But when anything goes over from "still" photos and fiction into the fantastic land of Hollywood you hold your breath until the finished work unfolds upon the screen. But you don't need to worry about "The Country Doctor"—it's swell.

It is a thrilling Canadian North Woods story, and the comedy surrounding the proud father of the quintuplets steals the show. The sequence in the outer room during the Dionne births, with dialogue between "Papa Dionne" and Slim Summerville, the village constable, laid the audience in the aisles Wednesday night.

When the third "quint" arrived, Slim Summerville eyed the drink he had drawn for himself and poured it back in the jug.

Tremendous Boom Due Real Estate

St. Louis Expert Analyzes Facts Before Little Rock Realtors

LITTLE ROCK—Causes of the current economic depression, which reached its peak in 1933, largely were monetary, Roy Wenzelick of St. Louis, real estate analyst, told a meeting of the Little Rock Real Estate Board Wednesday.

Exhibiting charts in support of his contention that 15 to 20 years is necessary to complete a real estate cycle from sub-normal prices to boom periods, he said that all factors are pointing to a revival in real estate and that a boom, equal or greater than that of the 1920's is "inevitable."

The boom will not occur until housing shortage increases values and rents to such a point where new construction can be undertaken on a profitable basis in competition with current values, he said, probably about 1938.

Differing with popular theory that over-building contributed to the depression in real estate, he said the percentage in real estate was lowest during the peak of the building boom, attributing the subsequent increase in vacancies to a contraction of demand for living quarters. The real estate cycle already was on the downward swing when the stock market crash occurred in 1929, he said.

Lack of credit did not contribute to the depression in real estate, he declared. There is and always has been credit but the existent values were not sufficient to justify investment. He warned that much of the surplus credit now available probably will be absorbed by business improvement leaving a small amount available for real estate. He predicted stabilization of real estate loans at not more than 6 per cent interest.

307,732 Cars Per Day on State Roads

Tourists Comprise 18.7% of All Travel on Arkansas Highways

LITTLE ROCK—Results of a traffic survey of the state highway system, completed recently as a co-operative project by the Highway Department and the United States Bureau of Public Roads, were made public Wednesday by the Highway Department.

They showed that an average of 307,732 vehicles of all types travel over the state road system every 24 hours. It was estimated that highway usage amounts to 3,000,000 vehicle miles per day.

The average traffic per route every 24 hours was found to be 369 vehicles and foreign cars averaged 18.7 per cent of the total.

Annual foreign traffic was placed at 1,492,000 cars, with an average personal per party of 2.48. The average length stay of tourist parties was found to be 4.6 days, making 6,863,000 vehicle days annually for foreign cars. The annual person days for tourists was estimated at 15,000,000.

Truck traffic was found to be 19.2 per cent of all traffic and single unit trucks, including tractor trucks, accounted for 85.5 per cent of all truck traffic, with the remainder, 14.5 per cent, being trucks with trailers or semi-trailers.

State Matching U. S. Funds; Total Pension $9 to $10

Possible That Date May Be Moved Up to Latter Part of May

9,000 TO BENEFIT

Payments to Aged Folk Result of 50-50 U. S.-State Co-operation

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—State Welfare Commissioner Charles Andrews Thursday set June 1 as the "kick-off day" to start payment of old-age pensions in Arkansas through federal and state-matched funds.

Andrews said it was possible that the monies might be distributed late in May to match payments made for that month out of the state allocation if the pension setup is completed by that time.

The welfare commissioner predicted that approximately 9,000 persons in the state would receive pensions when the payment starts.

$8 to $10 Per Month
Total pensions, federal and state combined, will amount to $8 or $10 at the outside, for aged persons.

Roosevelt Given Illinois Victory

Polls 1,112,042 Against Combined Knox-Borah Vote of 696,263

CHICAGO—(AP)—A heavy vote for President Roosevelt shared attention with the victories of Col. Frank Knox and Gov. Henry Horner in Tuesday's Illinois primary.

In 5,754 precincts out of the state's 7,426, the president polled a vote of 1,112,042 in the Democratic presidential preference ballot on which he was unopposed. Cook county contributed 831,021. In 5,877 precincts, Knox and Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, his opponent for the Republican preference vote, received a combined vote of 696,263. Returns from 6,006 of the 7,426 precincts gave Colonel Knox a plurality of 85,281 votes.

The vote:
Knox 330,772
Borah 305,491
Edward A. Hayes, chairman of the Knox for President Club called his candidate's victory "a long stride toward nomination" and Ex-senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire estimated that Knox had 130 delegates to the Cleveland convention, a figure, not "approached by any other candidate."

Senate Contempt Action Is Likely

Witness Bluntly Refuses to Answer Questions of Committee

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The blunt refusal of a witness to answer questions Thursday abruptly halted the senate Thursday committee hearing and raised the possibility of contempt proceedings.

The committee said they would direct during the afternoon to decide whether to cite the witness, Karl Grunwald, organizer for the Farmers' Independence council, for contempt.

Quintuplets Born to Roumania Gypsy

But Small Chance for Them—Dionne Sisters Alone in History

BUCHAREST, Roumania—(AP)—The birth of malformed quintuplets to a gypsy mother in a field was reported here Wednesday, but had not been confirmed by medical authorities.

The prefect of police at Oradea said over the telephone that two couples of the quintuplets were joined like "Siamese twins." He added that their feature was abnormal and that there was little chance that they would live.

A newspaper reporter said that the quintuplets, two boys and three girls, were born to Mrs. Maria Unguraru, 25, a gypsy, a short time after she had gone to work in the fields Wednesday, near Hodos, in the Bihor district of Transylvania.

Medical records show that the Dionne sisters of Callander, Ont., now nearly two years old, are the only quintuplets of authenticated record who have lived that long.

Records of the American Medical association show that in 30 cases over a 500-year period no set of five, except the Dionnes ever lived more than four days and that no other single quintuplet ever lived more than 50 days.

Unemployment State Law Upheld

New York's Insurance Act Declared Valid in State Courts

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—New York state's unemployment insurance law was held constitutional by the Court of Appeals Wednesday.

In a 5-to-2 decision the court said that it could see "nothing unreasonable or unconstitutional in the legislative act which seeks to meet the evils and dangers of unemployment in the future by raising a fund through taxation of employers generally."

The law was passed last year by the Democratic-controlled legislature.

Two cases were at issue. One involved appeal of the W. H. H. Chamberlain, Inc., and E. C. Sterns and Co. of Syracuse and the other the Associated Industries of New York state against the State Labor Department.

In the majority opinion, Chief Justice Frederick Crane said: "This act takes a certain type of employers three per cent on their pay rolls. This class of employer includes those who have employed at least four persons within each of 13 or more calendar weeks in the year 1935, or any subsequent calendar year. The employment of farm labor, or one's spouse or minor child or employment in certain charities are excluded."

Judge Irving G. Hubbs in the dissenting opinion expressed the opposition to the law when he said "the tax or contribution is not against industry or employers. It is against a certain class of individuals and corporations who are engaged in employing wage earners."

"It is placed not along upon those who have unemployed wage earners, but also upon those who have no unemployed workers. No one questions the obligation and duty of the state. The question here is whether the state may place that burden upon that class of individuals and corporations for the benefit of another class for whom condition they are in no way responsible."

Motor Column of Italians to Reach Capital in 3 Days

Trucks Are Guarded by Tanks and Watched Over by Airplanes

END APPEARS NEAR

Italy Demands Right to Negotiate Alone With the Italians

ROME, Italy—(Copyright Associated Press)—A flying column composed of hundreds of trucks, flanked by tanks and watched over by airplanes sped from Dessie toward Addis Ababa Thursday.

The mechanized fascist forces will reach Ethiopia's capital within three days, Italian advisers said.

At the same time, another column may move southeast and overtake the Nasibus troops at Harar, second city of Ethiopia, from the rear.

Italy to Talk Direct

GENEVA, Switzerland—(Copyright Associated Press)—Italy was deflected by an authoritative source Thursday as demanding the right to conduct direct negotiations with Ethiopia for peace, without any interference by the League of Nations.

According to this source, which is in intimate contact with the League, the Italian government demands that direct negotiations for eventual establishment of a military armistice be conducted as between victor and vanquished.

Such an armistice, it was said, might be followed by a peace conference at some neutral point such as Louvain.

France Is Worried

PARIS, France—(AP)—France, careful stock of its own military strength and hastened to announce Thursday, fearing that the entire system of collective security, built up under the League of Nations since the World war, might collapse.

France warned Great Britain Wednesday night not to play a "lone hand against Italy" under penalty of withdrawing French support in any sanctions against Italy and a Russian offer to stand with France against Germany in Locarno treaty negotiations.

France Strong Says Sarraut
Premier Albert Sarraut told provincial newspaper editors that France may be forced to quit the League of Nations if Geneva fails to affirm "faith in collective security" during "the most dreadful crisis for peace in 20 years."

The premier asserted the government could have used its army against Germany after the Reich denounced the Locarno treaty by reoccupying the Rhineland.

"There has been a lot of talk recently about the inferiority of France's military machine as compared to that of Germany," he declared. "Nothing is more false."

Sarraut warned the smaller European nations to back the French peace plan because, if collective security fails, "the greatest anguish" will be for them.

Official Attitude
The official French attitude on British foreign policy was "Fas-F"ish foreign policy was disclosed first in the newspaper Le Temps and later confirmed officially.

Tur agreement to aid the British fleet if it is attacked in the Mediterranean was not held if England plays a lone hand against Italy," Le Temps said.

"British has imperative reason not to desire a war whose whole weight she would have to support alone and which, by force of things, would paralyze her action in Europe when, because of the violation of the Rhineland pact by Germany, the worst complications are to be feared on the continent."

Officials emphasized that France would aid the British fleet in case England's warships were attacked in carrying out decisions of the League.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and Dr. Hygiene, the Health Magazine

This is the last of the series of articles on diet which I have written for about the last four months. The knowledge obtained from these articles should enable you to avoid deficiencies in your diet, and obtain from your food the maximum benefits for health and for growth.

There is a great difference between just living satisfactorily, and having the exuberant, buoyant feeling that comes with perfect condition of tissues and excellent nutrition.

Perhaps the most significant of all information offered in this series of articles is that concerning the protective foods, such as milk, fruits, vegetables, fish, and poultry, and at least half as much be spent for fruits and vegetables as for meats of all kinds.

Dietary authorities recommend that at least half of the total intake of food consist of the protective foods. They suggest that at least as much money be spent for milk, cream, and cheese as for meats, fish, and poultry, and at least half as much be spent for fruits and vegetables as for meats of all kinds.

The essentials of a well-balanced diet are those which provide, in the words of an authority, "Two or more liberal servings of fruits each day; two or more servings of vegetables daily, of which one should be a green or yellow vegetable, if practicable;

Today's Health Question
Q.—Is there any chemical solution which will help a person detect his own bad breath?

A.—The substances causing the breath to be disagreeable vary in composition—if, indeed, all are known. It is quite improbable, therefore, that any single reagent can be prepared which would detect these substances, particularly in the relatively small amounts in which they occur. Probably the sense of smell of a person not afflicted would be vastly more sensitive than any chemical.

about a quart of milk a day in some form, including, if desired, such equivalents as canned milk, milk powder, cheese, and cream, and an average of four or five eggs a week, more or less, depending on how well eggs agree, and their price.

This, however, is a rigid list and anyone with imagination may vary it to make a greater appeal to the appetite.

The information in this series isn't scientists' final word on nutrition and diet. Those who have been following the tremendous advances of the last 25 years know that we are only on the threshold of what we ultimately will be able to learn on this subject.

In addition to the research of scientists in laboratories of the great universities and schools of nutrition, manufacturers of food products have begun to realize that foods constitute the most important item in the American budget. All the great food industries have established laboratories in which research goes on constantly to determine how foods may be improved from the point of view of value in the diet and appeal to the appetite.

In the application of the newer dietary knowledge to the control of disease, physicians also are beginning to learn much that is new and significant. Newly discovered facts have changed our viewpoint regarding the relationship of certain dietary deficiencies to various diseases of some organs, to the breaking-down of bones and of teeth, to the occurrence of such conditions as pellagra, neuritis, scurvy, and similar deficiency diseases.

Some specialists, even, are prepared to say that we may eventually be able to improve the human mind by modifying the diet.

As a result of our new knowledge, children are growing bigger and taller, and they weigh more than did their ancestors. And we know that it is possible for them to live a little longer.

That is certainly more than enough to warrant widespread dissemination of the "Truth About Diet."

A Book a Day
By Bruce Catton

Books Carter has been telling the radio audience about the day's news for a number of years. An outspoken commentator, he has drawn an enormous number of letters—upward of a million, he says—from his listeners; and he believes that these letters, when reviewed, present a pretty fair cross-section of the American mind.

Trembling through the letters he has received since March 4, 1933, he has selected a few score which seem representative; and he has printed them, with his own comments, in "Johnny Q. Public Speaks" (Dodge $2), a book which gives an interesting picture of the way the nation has reacted to the New Deal.

At the very start, he shows, there was tremendous faith in Roosevelt and deep impatience with anyone who dared to criticize him. In the early days of 1933, at least 90 per cent of Mr. Carter's mail was strongly pro-Roosevelt.

Then, as the panic passed, and people began to discover that the world wasn't going to go up in smoke after all, reasoned criticism began to appear. The NRA came, and the AAA, and the other New Deal laws; and Johnny Q. Public began to show a divided mind, a dawning illusionism.

So Mr. Carter presents his letters, covering three eventful years; and there is visible in them a pathetic hope and a deep confusion. His letter writers do not yet seem to know precisely where they want to go or how they want to get there; they only know that they want the distress and suffering of recent years ended somehow, and that they are not disposed to be quite as patient about it as they have been.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Parents often train their children to be quite excellent fibers, although they sincerely believe they are inculcating standards of honesty in Dick and Betty's minds.

"Think of George Washington," they will remind them. "He never told a lie. You should do likewise."

"Oh, yeah?" the children probably would retort if they were interested enough to take definite action.

Take Dick, for example. He was an honest little boy, by nature. When he snapped a rubber band in school, or put a hop-toad in somebody's desk, he admitted it. That is, he did at first. His mother taught him the foolishness of accepting responsibility when he could evade it.

"Dick, the telephone is ringing. Will you answer it, please, and if anyone wants me say that I'm not here. Unless it's someone I want to talk to, of course. I'll give you a sign," she would say.

"No, my mother isn't here," Dick often told the caller. "No, she didn't say when she would be back."

Another Use for Prevention
There was the matter of the grocery store, too.

"I need some bread and eggs and I can't pay for them. That hat I bought today took the market money," she said another time. "Dick, you go to the store. The grocer couldn't refuse a child. Just tell him I had a bill that I didn't want to send with you, and I'll come in and pay in the morning."

Feeling a little embarrassed, just as though the grocer could see into his mind and knew that there wasn't a bill anywhere, Dick performed the errand.

"I paid ten dollar for this hat. Isn't it lovely?" Dick heard his mother tell his father one evening. He opened his mouth to explain that the hat had cost fifteen dollars. He knew, he had been often when his mother bought it. Maybe his mother wanted his father to think it had not cost that much.

Applying the Lessons
A few days later Dick watched under his teeth in school, a new trick he had just learned.

"Who did that?" the teacher asked. "Whoever is guilty must stay away from the school picnic. Now speak up."

Dick ordinarily would have confessed. Today he kept still. There was a way of avoiding unpleasantness, a way that didn't hurt anybody really. All you had to do was tell a fib.

A few years later Dick's grandmother shook her head over her grandson's streak of prevarication.

"It's strange," she said to hear daughter. "He always was such an honest little boy."

"I've worried and worried about it," her daughter said, never suspecting that he had planned Dick's square-toed boots firmly in the path of deception.

First dipped in a weak solution of caustic soda and then suspended with a weight just sufficient to keep it taught, a long human hair will foretell weather changes by growing longer for wet, and contracting for dry, conditions.

Rail Labor Asks Aid in Mergers

Wheeler-Crosser Bill Would Guarantee Jobs or Compensation

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The simple, short-worded statement made by Senator Wheeler of Montana as chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee that hearings would be had on S.4174 during the present session of congress caused everyone around Washington to sit up and take notice.

S.4174 is one of the most important measures affecting labor to come before congress in a long time. Briefly, it prescribes methods of taking care of those railway employees expected to be displaced by proposed railroad consolidations.

Labor officials estimate that from 150,000 to 250,000 railway employees would be affected.

The house interstate and foreign commerce committee already has begun hearings on a companion bill. The fact that the senate has decided to go into the matter at this session indicates that apparently a serious effort will be made to secure enactment of the legislation before adjournment.

Railroads Would Pay
Known on capitol hill as the Wheeler-Crosser bill, S.4174, attempts to compel the railroads to provide for those employees, displaced by proposed consolidations, either comparable employment or compensation.

It is an effort to apply on a nationwide basis principles which heretofore have been tried out in isolated cases.

The railroads are offered four alternatives in dealing with these displaced employees:

1. Provide for them comparable employment under no less favorable conditions.

2. If that is not possible then provide a continuing compensation pending such comparable employment.

3. A fair and just dismissal compensation which shall equal at least the earnings of the worker to be anticipated from one full year of continuing service.

4. An adequate pension for those who are eligible for retirement.

The last two provisions would be at the option of the employees.

Believe Congress Favorable
Despite stubborn opposition, labor leaders are confident if they can get the Wheeler-Crosser bill reported out of both houses and senate committees its passage is assured.

A determined fight is in prospect, both against the principles involved and time, Parliamentary maneuvering for the purpose of delaying the measure could quite easily see it lost in the crush of the closing days of the session.

Familiar arguments are being advanced by representatives of railway labor to secure enactment of the bill. They contend that wherever it has been a physical facility, or consolidate facilities to displace labor, railway managements have made the change.

Despite stubborn opposition, labor leaders are confident if they can get the Wheeler-Crosser bill reported out of both houses and senate committees its passage is assured.

A determined fight is in prospect, both against the principles involved and time, Parliamentary maneuvering for the purpose of delaying the measure could quite easily see it lost in the crush of the closing days of the session.

Familiar arguments are being advanced by representatives of railway labor to secure enactment of the bill. They contend that wherever it has been a physical facility, or consolidate facilities to displace labor, railway managements have made the change.

Discovery of New Sun Ray Revealed

Its Presence in Halo May Mean Finding of Brand New Chemical

PARIS.—(A)—The discovery of a new ray in the sun's halo, hitherto unknown, is claimed by a French astronomer, Bernard Lyot.

The ray—or it may even be a series of rays—is held to indicate that there is something, perhaps a chemical element, which so far has escaped the attention of observers.

Mr. Lyot, who has been analyzing the sun's light for the last year at the observatory on the Pic du Midi mountain in the Pyrenees, described his discovery in a report to the French Academy of Sciences.

He used a special apparatus, the coronagraph, which he said permitted exploration of the sun's halo at all times and not, as previously, only during eclipses.

The coronagraph divides the halo into the bands of the spectrum and it was while examining the red band, M. Lyot said, that he came across the new ray.

It must be the postman with a letter from Harriet. One letter had arrived several days ago—a letter that described "Aunt Abigail" Dimwiddle. Aunt Abigail's cooking, her comfortable, old-fashioned home and the little town of Pinnsville, all with equal enthusiasm.

Toby, anxious for more news, hurried down the stairs. She opened the door of the tiny vestibule—and faced Tim Jamieson.

"Hello, Gorgeous," he said, grinning. "I've given up trying to reach you by phone. Decided to come myself. Run upstairs and get your bonnet. You and I are going on a picnic."

He had said anything else except a picnic, Toby might not have weakened. But a picnic—blue sky overhead, green fields, trees reaching out generous, shady branches, perhaps a stream and the sound of rushing water! How had he known that a picnic would be irresistible?

"I'd love it," Toby said, raising shining eyes.

"The car's waiting and the lunch is packed. Hurry up and get that bonnet on—"

Already Toby was on her way upstairs. She called over her shoulder, "I'll hurry!"

She put on a dress of yellow linen and tied back her hair with a yellow scarf. She slipped on low, flat-heeled shoes, caught up a sweater, and was back.

The roadster at the curb was new. "Like it?" Tim asked, grinning.

"It's grand!"

She climbed inside and Tim took the wheel. Across the bridge to Long Island. Along hot streets, past tired-looking buildings, with the air gradually growing fresher, less stifling. On and on until presently the ribbon of pavement was bordered on either side with green. On until there was the blue water of the Sound and waves beating against the shore and a breeze that was certainly cool!

Still Tim drove on until, rounding a curve, they came to a stretch of beach so picturesque that Toby lost her head. They left the car, got out the hamper and carried it to a shady spot. Tim unpacked the lunch—cold chicken, salad, a thermos of iced coffee, a magnificent chocolate cake and fruit.

After lunch they lingered lazily for a while, then set off to "explore." When they were tired of this they came back to the picnic spot. Toby settled herself comfortably, leaning back against a tree and staring off across the blue water. Tim stretched out, full-length, pillowing his head on his arms.

Suddenly he sat up boldly. "I know," he said almost roughly, "why you're never at home any more when I call. It's Jay Hiller! There's something I've got to know, Gorgeous. Just how much does Hiller mean to you?"

Life's Unsung Song

There's ever one song in the hearts of men
That never to rhyme has sung:
'Tis the song of a dream that passed life by.
The song that never is sung.
Forever it sounds, like a deep-flowing stream.
Life's unsung song of a fugitive dream.
Full sweet is the song that a poet
sings.
And that of the winging bird;
But sweeter by far is that unsung song.
Too holy it is for common-day speech.
Too lofty for human effort to reach.
And what is the song that nobody
sings.
The child of unfeeling Fate,
Forever to bide under lock and seal
Enthroned in silent estate?
Oh, ever it sings in the souls of men.
The unsung song of the Might-Have Been.—W. A. D.

Mrs. Franklin Ozmer who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Camp of Patmos, has returned to her home in Los Angeles, Calif.
On Sunday April 12, the children of Mrs. A. J. Camp celebrated her 53rd birthday anniversary at her country home near Patmos. Beautiful spring flowers brightened the rooms, and the dining table was centered with a huge birthday cake embossed in white topped with 53 candles. A most pleasing feature of the occasion was that Mrs. Camp had the pleasure of having all of her children present, for the first time in nine years. Attending the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Camp, Dr. and Mrs. C. Camp of Patmos, Mrs. A. Rogers and children, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sanford and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Camp and family, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ward and daughter of Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bailey and family of Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Teddie Camp and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Camp and daughters of Amory, Miss, Mrs. Franklin Ozmer of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. N. Butcher and son of Little Rock, Mrs. J. S. The regular bi-weekly meeting of the Bay View Reading club was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. B. Thompson on South Elm street, with Mrs. Fred R. Harrison as co-hostess. The Thompson home was bright and attractive with colorful sprays of flowers, and the meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. E. S. Gibson, who introduced Mrs. J. S. Gibson, the program chairman. Mrs. Gibson reviewed the life of a popular day author, George Santayana. Mrs. Gus Haynes in her own pleasing way reviewed Mr. Santayana's book, "The Last Puritan." Santayana is a Spanish author educated in the United States. Following the program, the hostesses served a delightful ice course with angel food cake. The next meeting will be a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Gus Haynes. The Centennial meeting, will be held at the home of Mrs. R. M. Bryant on the last Wednesday in May, with Mrs. Hugh Smith leading.

His Fifth World Trip to Be by Air

Texan Will Leave May 7 on Long Voyage on Regular Air Lines

MARLIN, Texas.—(AP)—Dr. Bolivar Lang Falconer, who has traveled around the world four times, is going to make another circuit—by air.
"On previous trips," the 65-year-old Texan explains, "I have used boat, automobile, bus and train; now I want to be the first passenger to make the complete trip by air." He hopes to complete the journey in 30 days.

Dr. Falconer expects to leave Dallas May 7. At New York he will become a passenger on the new Zeppelin, the von Hindenburg across the Atlantic to Germany. From Frankfurt he will fly to Berlin, Amsterdam and Rome. Carlo, Egypt, is the next stop listed; then Baghdad, Jodhpur, Rangoon, Singapore, and Batavia. A chartered plane will take him to Manila, where he will fly on one of the new clipper ships for San Francisco, via Guam, Wake, Midway and Hawaii.

Dr. Falconer, a quiet man with a reputation for finishing whatever he undertakes, has been traveling almost constantly since his retirement in 1930 as senior examiner for the United States civil service commission. Even before then Dr. Falconer traveled extensively, and lived for a time in Manila.
He is a bachelor.
On previous world trips he was accompanied by John Saxton of New York but on his projected flight will travel alone.

New York, Jersey Parks Get CCC Aid

Eastern States' Park Program Is Advanced 5 to 10 Years

NEW YORK.—(AP)—State parks of New York and New Jersey will reopen this spring with improved recreational facilities developed through the winter by the CCC under the national park service.
In nearly 40 parks in the two states planning and construction have been advanced five to ten years under the federal program.
Improvements include new picnic-ing areas, camping grounds, overnight cabins, bridges and other enlarged recreational facilities. Several historical and scenic regions also are more accessible as the result of the winter's labor.

Wrestling Card One of the Best

LaCrosse Appeared Before 3,000 L. R. Fans on Wednesday

Fair Park arena wrestling card Thursday night shapes up as one of the best of the season.

More action, however, is promised in the 45-minute semi-final bout in which Gil LaCrosse, monest of the light heavyweights, meets Toots Estes. Since his entry into Arkansas a month ago, LaCrosse has risen rapidly to the top as a drawing card. As "king of the meanies," he appeared before 3,000 fans at Little Rock Wednesday night.

Because of his good-looks and profile, (Handsome Jack) Moore of Powhatan, Ark., is another drawing card on Thursday night's program.
Moore is a capable wrestler and specializes in the kangaroo kick. He has appeared in Hope before.
Chaney, who meets Moore in the main bout, is a scientific workman, but occasionally turns tough.
As for Toots Estes, the Elk City, Okla., boy who made his first appearance in Hope last week, it can be said that he is capable of taking care of himself against LaCrosse.
Promoter Mauldin said that W. C. Page would do the officiating. All seats will be 35 cents.

Grace Moore Is Taking Own Films

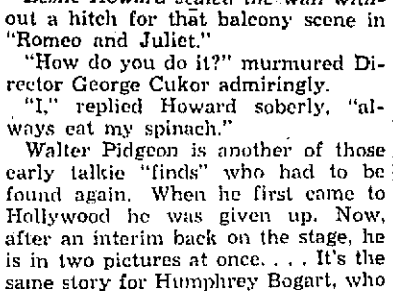

Robin Coons Writes of Doings of Many Hollywood Stars

By ROBIN COONS
Associated Press Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD.—Unreel parade: Grace Moore has been taking serious camera lessons. She had experts including Josef von Sternberg, director-coach her. Her camera is small but was standard-size film, and she planned to use it on her European tour. Will there be a feature travelogue by Grace Moore? Norman Foster and Claudette Colbert, when they were married, made quite a good one of their round-the-world tour.
Loveliest sight at a recent Hollywood ball was Joan Bennett, orchids in her hair. . . . Robert Taylor was there with Janet Gaynor (his partner in "Small Town Girl") instead of Ince. . . . Heretofore, his reputed heart interest, . . . Joan Blondell, escorted by Dick Powell, might have stepped from a costume picture, looking very quaint in a violet something with a tinge of violets in her hair. . . . Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone, Dolores Costello (fresh from a screen-return triumph in "Little Lord Fauntleroy"), Isabel Jewell and Ross Alexander. . . . Joy Hodge did a feather in the coiffure instead of the prevailing floral decoration.
Josephine Dillon (ex-Gable) has moved her dramatic coaching school to the house once occupied by Julia Haydon, her prize pupil. Robert Taylor likes hamburger steak and onions . . . at least twice a week. Ann Tobin (new contractee) will have her name changed because of the other Tobin (Genevieve) in pictures. . . . They are not related. Warner Bros. changed Kay Linaker's name, too, to Lynn Acker . . . and she didn't like it and left them.
Howard Howard scaled the wall without a hitch for that balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet."
"How do you do it?" murmured Director George Cukor admiringly.
"I," replied Howard soberly, "always eat my spinach."
Walter Pidgeon is another of those early talkie "finds" who had to be found again. When he first came to Hollywood he was given up. Now, after an interim back on the stage, he is in two pictures at once. . . . It's the same story for Humphrey Bogart, who had little or no luck when he first came out, but since "The Petrified Forest" is a "big discovery"—so big, in fact, that fantastic rumors of a projected revival of "Little Caesar" for him have been floated.

Frank Borzage maintains an office in a downtown building but never sees it. He does all his business with it over the telephone . . . business enterprises outside of films, like real estate. Borzage has had the office five years, and only recently met one of his employees, a young woman who introduced herself to him at a Sunday polo match with the explanation she was on his payroll.

Only 12 Bona Fide Picture "Stars"

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—(AP)—Movie Producer Darryl Zanuck said Wednesday night that only a dozen people reserve the title of film "stars."
"But about 1,200 people are called stars," he added.
He didn't list the dozen because theoretically the movie makers are one big happy family, none of whom would dream of disparaging his hired help.
"A star, as I see it," he said, "is someone who can draw 2,000,000 patrons to the box office, and do it on his own personal magnetism, without a necessarily great story or an army of popular supporting players."
Measured by that yardstick, the only legitimate "stars" in Hollywood are Shirley Temple, Clark Gable, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire (as a team), Mae West, Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields, Joe E. Brown, James Cagney and Dick Powell. They have the 2,000,000 fan-power, their studios say.
This list coincided, in substance, with the roster of 10 most popular players in a vote of thousands of theater operators recently.

Rev. Clark filled his appointment here Sunday. He preached a good Easter sermon to a large audience.
Calvin Wilson of Magnolia college visited Miss Ruth Foley Saturday evening.
Miss Blanche McKee of Little Rock visited home folks and friends here for a few days recently and attended services here Sunday night.
T. J. Hill went to see his wife Saturday and Sunday at Texarkana. He said she was some better.
Elbert Collins of Dierks made a trip home Sunday afternoon for a few minutes.
All the little folks of the beginners department of the two Sunday schools enjoyed an Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon with their teachers, Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. Robertson.

Canceling License Helps Cut Crashes

Revocation Order Is Getting Good Results in North Carolina

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—State officials say that revocation of automobile drivers' licenses is proving effective in curbing highway accidents.
Since the drivers' license law went into effect last November 1, authorities of the highway division of the state department of revenue, disclose that 2,200 licenses have been recalled.
Principal offense resulting in revocation, they say, has been drunken driving.

Skates With One Foot
OSCALOOSA, Ark. —(P)— Although one foot has been useless since an attack of infantile paralysis four years ago, 2-year-old Lena Mae Blunt straps a roller skate to the other and, with the aid of crutches, speeds along with her playmates.

What a Girl!

She went to Hollywood and taught the screen sirens some new tricks. Read her story in the new serial, "Folly and Farewell."

WHEN BLADDER IRRITATION WAKES YOU UP

Strike at the cause. It's nature's way of saying "Danger Ahead." Make the 2c test. Use Buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc., to flush out excess acids, and irritations. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. You are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Got buchu, juniper oil, etc., in little green tablets called Bukes. In four days if not pleased, your druggist will refund your 25c. Briant's Drug Store, John S. Gibson Drug Co.
